Voices helps dedicate restored Lyric Theatre

Voices of the South became the first act in 65 years to perform on the stage of the newly renovated Lyric Theatre as they took the stage for the theatre's Dedication Ceremony on January 9 in Birmingham.

Donors, laborers and Birmingham Landmarks board and staff gathered with city officials and other visitors in the theatre for the dedication ceremony that included a preview of what is to come when the doors officially open. Everything old is new again.

"What an honor to be singing with Voices at the Invite-Only Dedication Show," says Tony Ivey, a Voices bass. "The talent that has crossed this stage in the past is mind-blowing and we will be the first performers in more than six decades. History is being made here."

The Lyric, which was built in 1914, was originally a vaudeville theatre and hosted such performers as Al Jolson, the Marx Brothers, Mae West, Buster Keaton, and Will Rogers. It was converted into a movie theater in 1954 and was closed in the mid-1980s. It remained shuttered until its purchase by Birmingham Landmarks, the non-profit group that also restored the Alabama Theatre. Birmingham Landmarks raised $11.2 million to renovate the theatre. Restoration work began in 2014.

Voices of the South is honored and humbled to have been a part of the dedication ceremony.

The chorus would like to express appreciation to Brant Beene, executive director of Birmingham Landmarks; Keith Cromwell, executive director of Red Mountain Theatre Co.; Tom Crosby, veteran Birmingham development director, formerly of the Birmingham Business Alliance; and all the donors and workers who made such a magnificent place beautiful again.

'Want to sing in unique venues? Be a Barbershopper'

Why do you sing?

I sing to elevate the endorphin levels in my brain. Not really! On one side I sing to serve God and to entertain people. I love to watch people enjoying themselves because of the music I am making. On another side I enjoy being part of the sound that's created, particularly when a unique chord sounds. I also love the personal challenge of finding new and improved ways to produce sound vocally.

Why sing barbershop?

Early on in barbershop singing, it was performing music with a unique sound that got me. Later on barbershop came to mean fellowship, but with music as the common thread connecting everyone who sang it. It is that thread that allows us to overcome the many differences that ordinarily drive groups apart.

Who are you?

My name is Darrell Mansfield. I was born in Huntsville on June 16, 1967. I graduated with a degree in Mechanical Engineering from the University of Alabama at Birmingham. After working several years as a mechanical engineer, I opted to make a small change in my career. For the past 15 years I have worked as a network engineer for FIS (formerly SunGard). I live in Pelham and have a 6-year-old Terrier-Vizsla mix named Maddie. You may email me at penguin99@charter.net.

Got experience?

I sang in the children's choir at church as a youngster. Later I learned the trumpet and played in my schools' bands from middle school through high school. During college I began singing as part of a college group at Saint Mark United Methodist Church, which transitioned to singing in the adult choir in 1989. In 1995 I began singing with the Birmingham Concert Chorale (now Alabama Symphony Chorus). I have sung in many languages, including Latin, German, French, Italian, Hebrew, Russian and of course English.

I began singing Barbershop in 1999 with Birmingham Metro (Harmony Express). A few years later the chapter merged with the Tuscaloosa chapter and became Central Alabama (Voices of the South). When traveling I like to visit other chapters as a guest. It's fun to see how various chapters work. It's certainly good to meet other barbershop singers.

I have a flexible vocal range. In Barbershop I tend to sing Tenor (the high part) as there is much demand for the part. However in more classical/traditional singing I have sung Tenor I, Tenor II and Bass I. Since I'm a barbershop Tenor, I can often be heard singing Alto and even some Soprano ranges during church choir rehearsals. I do this for fun. It's a personal challenge.

In my Barbershop journey I have had the opportunity to sing in some very nice venues. Voices of the South recently performed in the newly renovated Lyric Theatre in downtown Birmingham. In fact the chorus was the first official act to perform there in 65 years. Our performance preceded the grand opening. It was at the dedication of the theatre, which was attended by many dignitaries including the Mayor and Birmingham City Council.

The Lyric is special. We performed without sound enhancement and were able to be heard throughout the hall. The acoustics are very good. Considering that this theatre was built before up-to-date sound technologies were commonplace.

The Lyric performance started me thinking of places I have performed. Voices performed at the Alabama Theater several times. Other historic theatres we have performed at include the Bama Theater in Tuscaloosa, Tivoli Theatre in Chattanooga and Tennessee Theatre in Knoxville.

Among the most unique venues Voices performed at are the Convention Center in Gatlinburg, Tenn., and the Bass Pro Shop in Leeds. One quartet I was in performed on the contest stage at the Gold Strike Casino in Tunica, Miss., and on the street in Gadsden, Ala.

Need entertainment for your event?

Voices of the South is ready.

We don't care if your event is a corporate dinner, a fundraiser, or just singing the national anthem, we want to provide your entertainment.

We are about two-dozen men who sing Barbershop. We would love to talk to you! Please click the link and leave us a message at VoicesOfTheSouth.com.

Do you sing?

Come by on any Monday night and sing with us.

You don't have to be an accomplished singer.

Most of the Voices of The South chorus don't read music.

Instead, we use "learning tracks" to learn our parts. We provide sheet music and recordings of our music that are part-predominate.

If you can sing "Happy Birthday," we can teach you everything you need to know to be able to hop on stage with us.

There's only one restriction — you do have to be a male. Sorry ladies.

We rehearse from 7 to 9:30 p.m. on Mondays in the Fellowship Hall of Saint Mark United Methodist Church, 2901 Columbiana Road, Vestavia Hills, AL., 35216.
